

Condé Nast Traveller February 2006

Ron Roozen's Place

Need to go

Two's company

With Valentine's Day approaching, thoughts turn to the romantic escape. For couples who just want to be alone, here are five ideal locations

● Ron Roozen's Place, Prevelly, Western Australia

You don't get oceanside retreats more beautiful than this architect-designed, concrete, wood and glass beach house overlooking the surf, with 180-degree Indian Ocean views from all three rooms. For total privacy, book the whole place. Doubles from A$400 (about £175) per night. 00 61 408 918896; www.ronroozen.com.au

● Nihiwatu, Sumba, Indonesia. above. These six thatched, two-person bungalows with 438 acres of tropical forest and a fabulous beach on an island just south of Java are the most recent winners of Responsible Travel's luxury award. Bungalows from US$472 per night. 08700 052836; www.responsibletravel.com

● Just2Suites, Haute Pyrénées, France. top right.

Exactly what it says on the tin, with just two large suites, open fires, a library, pool, gardens with views of the Pyrenees, and a per night, including breakfast. 00 33 5 62 33 68 03; www.just2suites.com

● Dolphin Island, Fiji. below.

Two Fijian bures – one for sleeping, the other for living – on a tiny island in clear seas. Wooden walls and floors. South Seas textiles. A class act. NZ$1,460 (about £600) per day for two. 00 64 7 378 5791; www.dolphinislandfiji.com

● Chalet Mozart, Verbier, Switzerland. below.

This two-person chalet at the bottom of the Verbier piste is available winter and summer. The price includes Champagne, hamper, Molton Brown products, fruit and flowers. From £1,000 per week for two. 020 7471 7700; www.skisolutions.com

